THURSDAY, : : : JUNE 10, 1875. THE INDEPENDENTS. and 1860 we had three parties in the field, and then one of the two great parties to every one who is at all familiar with ernment are the servants of the people, truths, settled as they are by all the ject. None of the objections are well called "independent journals" and self- firmed." assumed independent aspirants for publie favor is an absurdity. Many of these journals have been singing jolly requiems over the "dead Democracy" for a decade, while they have suffered no great living statesman of that defunct (?) organization to pass without a facetious epitaph. Meanwhile, these modest independent would-be statesmen exercise their active lungs in telling the people what a glorious thing it is to be an independent voter, and what wonderful things are about to be done by their little squad of political outcasts. We don't mean to be harsh in the use of the word outcast in this connection, but simply to be truthful. In nine cases out of ten, the independent politician is a man who has been discarded by one or the other of the great parties of the country. It is absolutely amusing to read the fustian from such sources, Just think of it! The Republican party has been in power for fifteen years. Last year the "dead Democracy" rallied all their forces and swept the country at the State elections to such an extent as to inspire a very confident hope of success in 1876. Since these elections transpired the two great parties have been, and are now, stripping for the contest from one end of the land to the other. The Republicans are unloading their dead weights, and sounding the of energy that means eagerness for the fray. Yet, in the light of all this preparation, a few thousand impracticables are beating the air with nonsensical deciarations of the great purposes and designs of the independents, while they watch from their windows to see which party is gaining strength that they may be ready to fall into its ranks. The issues in the next Presidential election will be broad and well defined, and there will be no neutrals, no guerillas and no independents. There will be but two parties in the contest-Democracy and Radicalism. The latter will favor centralization, a strong government, and, as a necessary sequence, bayonet rule. The former means local rule, home governments as secured to the States by the constitution. Radicalism means sumptuary legislation in States, central rule all over the States, and sumptuary and class legislation by congress, and arbitrary executive power in the President and sonal liberty, limited powers of the Federal government, and government

agance, corruption and public plunder. THE EXPENSES MUST BE PAID. Messrs. Whittle and Bliss have been conducting most delightful, and seemingly effective, meetings at the Operahouse and Exposition building. These houses have been brilliantly lighted at night, and provided with everything to render the audiences exceedingly comfortable The Exposition building has been fitted up handsomely and conveniently with much cost. Now, I want to know who foots the bills? I have attended many of the exercises, with pleasure, instruclarge expenses are to be borne by the public, by subscriptions, I consider it my duty to bear my part, and I desire you to inform me who has been appointed to receive subscriptions. I have no doubt hundreds of citizens would gladly contribute to this noble work if they knew how to do it. ELIZABETH.

In answer to our correspondent, we can only say that on Tuesday, the eleventh of May, at a meeting of citizens, the following named gentlemen were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the evangelists: E. M'Davitt, Issac N. Snowden, E. T. Keel, J. Hatchelt, J. M. Beatty, J. C. Mills, J. W. Caldwell, J. K. Godwin, W. J. Hopson, L. H. Palmer, F. Vanhorn, R. C. Daniel, T. H. Rice, E. C. Jones, E. H. Porter, W. J. Armstrong, John Johnston, J. W. Vogeli, W. L. Marsh, F. C. Schaper, S. C. Rogers and Dr. Malone. This committee, we presume, has made collections; if not, it is time they had. The expenses attending the meetings at the Operahouse and the Exposition building, where so much good has been accomplished, ought to be paid by the great mass of our religious people. Indeed, we think it ought not to be left to the committee to make the collections. The good people who have profited by the labors of Messrs. Whittle and Bilss, and who have so far sustained them by their presence, should go farther and put their hands in their "prominent bankers to this effect: "Repockets to defray the expenses. D. C. SLAUGHTER, OF TIPTON.

This worthy citizen, and formerly a member of the Tennessee legislature, is doing as much as any man in West Tennessee, to promote the great interests of the south. He has established an extensive stock farm near Covington, and we are gratified to know is meeting with pecuniary success, while supplying the country with what is so much needed, Durham and Alderney or Jersey cattle, Berkshire hogs, Cashmere goats, etc., etc. Mr. Slaughter has forwarded butter to this city, made from a heifer nineteen months old, giving a large amount of milk while furnishing an abundance for a fine calf. We have seen a specimen of wool from a Cotswold buck which shed nineteen pounds last week, and it cannot be surpassed. The interest which Mr. Slaughter is manifesting in stock-raising and his success is another favorable presage as to the future of the south. It shows that our people are determined to diversify their products, to increase their breeds of horses, cattle, hogs, sheep and goats. This is the way to reclaim the Impoverished, desolated south. We wish our enterprising friend of Tipton much success in his worthy enterprise.
